

Torrance Toggery
Opened Big Sale
This Morning

In a drastic effort to reduce his surplus stock, Mr. S. Rappaport of the Torrance Toggery inaugurated a store-wide sale today that means worth-while savings to the people of this district.

"We don't want you to consider this as just an ordinary sale," said Mr. Rappaport, "because it is not. It is the greatest sacrifice of quality goods that we have ever offered. When you stop to consider such nationally known brands as Hart Schaffner & Marks Clothes, Walk-Oyer Shoes, Phoenix Hosiery, Cooper Underwear, and many equally recognized brands of quality goods, are all included in this sale at big reductions from the standard prices the world over, you know that we are disregarding profits entirely.

"The Torrance Toggery has put no restrictions on any goods," said Mr. Rappaport. "Everything in the store goes. We have over twice as much merchandise as we ought to have at this season of the year, and we are going to keep right on selling it at these drastic prices until our stock has been cut in half. We do not know how long the sale will last. As the phenomenal values become better known the sale will grow in intensity, so it will pay you to come early. We want you to remember that our personal guarantee goes with every purchase, just as if you paid the full price for it, and back of the guarantee of the Torrance Toggery goes the reputation and guarantee of the manufacturers, whose goods are recognized everywhere as the most dependable."

The Torrance Toggery sale started this morning and will continue until half the present stock is sold. In order that all may have an opportunity of partaking in the bargains, the store will remain open evenings until 8 o'clock and on Saturdays until 10 p. m.

TORRANCE THEATRE

"The War-Path," the first episode of the new Patheserial, "Leatherstocking," featuring Harold Miller and Edna Murphy, will be shown Saturday at the Torrance theatre, introducing to its patrons a serial said to be riotous with thrills and throbbing with realism. It is an adaptation of the world-famous novels of James Fenimore Cooper, and depicts certain stirring incidents that transpired on Glimmerglass Lake, which is the translation of the Indian name, Otsego.

Leatherstocking, the hero, portrayed by Harold Miller, is a white youth familiar with Indian ways through living with the Delawares, who never fought the white men except in self-defense. But the Hurons, who swarmed the banks of beautiful Glimmerglass Lake, were ferocious and blood-thirsty, and made war on Tom Futtler, an ex-pirate. He lived with his two beautiful daughters, Judith, portrayed by Edna Murphy, and Hetty, in Muskrat Castle, a strange hut anchored on the lake. Romance, mystery, thrills, suspense and action abound in this episode, directed by George B. Seitz, the famous Patheserial director.

Promised as being something different and original in film plays, but so realistic and human a drama of the sea that one almost feels the sting of salty spray, the new Metro picture, "Half-a-Dollar-Bill," a Max Graf production, will be shown at the Torrance theatre Saturday.

Anna Q. Nilsson is the featured feminine player, who gives the most notable performance of her career as a girl pressed by poverty to abandon her baby that it might live, and who then recovers her child in later years through the most dramatic developments.

"Thy Name Is Woman," a new Fred Niblo production, presented by Louis B. Mayer through Metro, will come to the Torrance theatre for an engagement of two days, starting Sunday. It is a picturization of the American version, by Benjamin Glazer, of Karl Schoenherr's famous play.

The cast includes Ramon Novarro, Barbara La Marr, Edith Roberts, William V. Mong, Robert Edeson, Wallace MacDonald and Claire McDowell.

The play won success last season on Broadway with Mary Nash and Jose Rubens in the principal roles.
